

Sharon White joined the Auxiliary in 1981 for 33 years of service.

Prior to the establishment of Coast Guard radio high sites, Sharon would position her sail boat in a location in Prince William Sound where she could monitor communications from the Coast Guard Station in Valdez. There were many places that were considered dead zones, places where radio calls from Valdez could not be detected. By being out there in a location where she could hear Station Valdez, she could then relay that sometimes crucial information to the Operational Facilities that were on patrol and out of range for Valdez. She worked closely with Jack and Marjorie Jesse in operations.